

Ministerial Drug and Alcohol Forum Communiqué 16 December 2016

The inaugural meeting of the Ministerial Drug and Alcohol Forum took place via teleconference today.

The Ministerial Drug and Alcohol Forum consists of Ministers from across Australia with responsibility for alcohol and other drug policy from the health and justice / law enforcement portfolios from each jurisdiction.

The meeting was co-chaired by the Commonwealth Minister for Health, the Hon Sussan Ley MP, and the Commonwealth Minister for Justice, the Hon Michael Keenan MP.

Major items discussed by Members today included:

Progress against the National Ice Action Strategy

Members noted that of the 31 actions identified in COAG's National Ice Action Strategy (published in December 2015) that significant progress had been made in implementing a number of key actions focussing on reducing the impact that crystal methamphetamine ('ice') has on Australian communities.

A detailed progress report on the National Ice Action Strategy will be provided to COAG, highlighting the following progress:

- Availability of new evidence-based online education and prevention resources (Positive Choices website);
- Expansion of alcohol and other treatment services through Counselling Online, new targeted funding provided to Primary Health Networks and increased capacity in state and territory services;
- Introduction of new Medicare items for Addiction Medicine Specialists;
- Strengthened efforts in responding to serious and organised crime;
- Continuing efforts to improve the timeliness and quality of data collections; and
- Ongoing development of a national precursor chemical tracking system (Ne-EUD) and jurisdictions commitment to improve and harmonise controls for precursor chemicals and equipment.

Members noted that further NIAS actions are expected to be implemented over coming months, including the establishment of a new National Centre of Clinical Excellence for Emerging Drugs of Concern, the commencement of the phased roll-out of a national network of Local Drug Action Teams and the launch of an online community resources toolkit (Cracks in the ice website).

The Ministerial Drug and Alcohol Forum will continue to oversee progress of the National Ice Action Strategy, and has identified two particular whole of government actions to be progressed for Ministerial consideration as a priority:

- Establish a national phone line that will serve as a single point of contact for individuals and families seeking to receive information, counselling and other support services for dealing with ice use and other drugs; and

- Implement a quality framework to provide consistent and appropriate treatment in accordance with best practice.

The National Drug Strategy

Members noted that a draft of the National Drug Strategy was well advanced, and have requested that a final draft be provided for consideration at the next meeting of the Forum.

Once the National Drug Strategy had been endorsed, the National Alcohol Strategy would be considered by the Ministerial Forum thereafter.

National Alcohol and Other Drug Governance Arrangements

Members agreed the Terms of Reference to guide the work of the Ministerial Forum (see below).

Ministers also noted advice from the National Drug Strategy Committee (a newly established Senior Officials group supporting the work of the Ministerial Forum) relating to the development of their 2017 workplan.

Ministers also noted that the newly established National Drug Strategy Committee had replaced the former Intergovernmental Committee on Drugs.

The next meeting of the Forum is expected to take place in March 2017.
