1.1 Strategic Direction Statement

The Australian Government, through Australian Sports Commission (ASC), provides leadership, coordination and support for Australian sport. ASC promotes a collaborative national sports system that creates opportunities for all Australians to participate and excel in sport. ASC aims to improve participation in structured physical activity through sport, and promote excellence in sports performance and continued international sporting success.

The role and functions of ASC are set out in the Australian Sports Commission Act 1989. ASC is prescribed as a Commonwealth Authority under the Commonwealth Authorities and Companies Act 1997.

1.2 Agency Resources

Table 1.2.1 shows the total resources from all origins. The table summarises how resources will be applied by outcome and by departmental classifications.

Section 2: Outcomes and Planned Performance

2.1 Outcomes and Performance Information

Outcome 1 – Improved participation in structured physical activity, particularly organised sport, at the community level, including through leadership and targeted community-based sports activity

Outcome 2 – Excellence in sports performance and continued international sporting success, by talented athletes and coaches, including through leadership in high-performance athlete development, and targeted science and research

Outcome Strategy

From 2010-11, the Australian Government's Australian Sport: The Pathway to Success forges a new whole-of-sport approach to Australian sport focused on three key areas: increasing the numbers of Australians participating in sport for the benefit of our community; strengthening sporting pathways linking 'grass roots' and high performance sport to ensure sustained participation through a strengthened development pathway; and ensuring Australia continues to excel in international sporting competition.

Fundamental to this new approach is developing a collaborative, efficient and integrated national sports system.

ASC will work closely with Department of Health and Ageing, the Department of Families, Housing, Community Services and Indigenous Affairs, the Department of Immigration and Citizenship, the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations, states and territories, local governments and a range of non-government partners, to deliver the Australian Government's new integrated whole-of-sport agenda.

The National Sport and Active Recreation Policy Framework, agreed by the Sport and Recreation Ministers Council (SRMC), will establish a shared national direction for sport and provide a cohesive base for ASC to strengthen sporting pathways, enhance opportunities for participation and better support our high performance athletes.

The Australian Government, through ASC, will expand the opportunities for Australians to participate in sport in partnership with national sporting organisations, support sport volunteers through the delivery of a National Sport Volunteer Strategy, bolster women's sport through a range of targeted measures and assist community coaches and officials to access and receive training and mentoring.

The capacity and sustainability of national sporting organisations¹ is important to the Australian sports system and a key focus for ASC will be to build the capacity and capability of sporting organisations and other groups delivering or supporting the delivery of sport in the community.

In support of sporting excellence, the Government will improve opportunities for talented athletes to reach their potential, through ASC, by providing funding and support to national sporting organisations and other sports system partners to strengthen the development pathway.

Through ASC, the Government will also provide Australian athletes and coaches with the support, systems and programs necessary to sustain and build international sporting success.

To further strengthen Australia’s high performance sporting system, ASC will work across jurisdictions to achieve reform agreed between the Commonwealth and states and territories through the SRMC that will improve the alignment of the Australian Institute of Sport (AIS) and the state and territory institutes and academies of sport (SIS/SAS).

The AIS, a key division of ASC, will continue to provide a world-class training environment and a Centre of Excellence to support athlete and coach development. This will include the coordination and delivery of applied research.

Contributions to ASC

Program 1.1: National sport system development

Program Objective

The Australian Government, through this Program, aims to:

- lead reform of the Australian sports system to create a more cohesive and effective system, providing opportunities for all Australians to participate and excel;
- increase opportunities for all Australians, particularly children and young people, to participate in sport through a whole-of-sport pathway approach to sports policy; and
- build the capacity and sustainability of sporting organisations, particularly national sporting organisations, to deliver sporting opportunities.

Major Activities

Reform the sporting system

In 2010-11, the Australian Government will implement in collaboration with State and Territories the National Sport and Active Recreation Policy Framework. The Framework will provide clear objectives and priorities for the sport sector across jurisdictions and define government roles and responsibilities. ASC will lead the implementation of strategies consistent with the Framework, working closely with Australian Government agencies, state, territory and local governments, and a range of non-government partners involved in supporting or delivering sport at national, state or local levels.

In line with the agreement reached by SRMC, ASC will work in partnership with jurisdictions to improve the alignment of the AIS and the state and territory Institutes and Academies of Sport (SIS/SAS) to strengthen Australia's high performance system.

Increase opportunities to participate in sport

ASC will work with the Department of Health and Ageing, the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations and state and territories, to support the delivery of the Government's National Sport and Education Strategy.

This Strategy will promote the delivery of quality sport and physical education in primary and secondary schools to boost the number of our children participating in our sporting base.

ASC will continue to deliver the Active After-School Communities program through primary schools and out-of-school care services. In 2010, this program will provide opportunities for children to participate in quality, safe and fun sport and other structured physical activity sessions. The program will also help build community capacity to deliver sport, encourage children and their families to participate in sports, train community coaches and support the transition of children, families and coaches to local sporting clubs.

In 2010-11, ASC will also support national sporting organisations to work with their state and territory counterparts, state and territory government and other non-government agencies, to develop and implement participation plans. These plans will aim to increase participation and assist local clubs and organisations to deliver targeted and inclusive programs for their communities.

ASC will also deliver the National Sport Volunteer strategy in collaboration with sporting organisations, other Australian Government agencies, states and territories and non-government organisations. This strategy will support the Australian Government's National Volunteering strategy², and provide a vehicle to celebrate 2011 as the 10th anniversary of the International Year of Volunteers.

ASC will work with national sporting organisations, states and territories and the media, to develop and implement initiatives to help address the particular issues affecting women's participation, advancement and leadership in sport.

The ASC will also establish Women in Sport Awards to recognise exemplary initiatives which provide special support for women's and girls' participation in sport, whether as players, coaches, administrators or officials. In partnership with national sporting organisations and other key bodies, such as the Butterfly Foundation, ASC will work to develop strategies to tackle body image issues which affect women's participation in sport, especially amongst girls.

In 2010-11, ASC in partnership with national sporting organisations will enhance the opportunities for Indigenous Australians and people with disability to participate in sport at both the community and high performance levels.

ASC will continue to support the Australian Government's broader agenda of preventative health, social inclusion and the National Partnership Agreement on Closing the Gap in Indigenous Health Outcomes. ASC will create and promote best practice strategies to increase participation in sport and physical activity at the community level and will deliver a Social Inclusion and Sport Strategy that will focus on supporting activities and initiatives that maximise the participation of all Australians in sport regardless of their ethnicity, religion, sexuality or gender.

In recognition of the critical role that coaches and officials play in Australian sport ASC will provide additional coaching and officiating training opportunities and new community coaches and officials will have the opportunity to access support to cover costs associated with training.

Build the capacity and sustainability of sporting organisations

In 2010-11, ASC will support national sporting organisations to ensure that they develop comprehensive strategic plans in consultation with key sports system partners, including their respective state and territory sporting organisations and government agencies. This process will integrate critical elements into a cohesive and achievable whole-of-sport strategic plan, which includes sports participation, high performance sport, sports commercialisation strategies, and volunteering.

ASC will support national sporting organisations to improve their governance and management practices, and develop commercialisation strategies to enhance their long-term viability and to improve opportunities for national sporting organisations to increase participation.

In 2010-11, ASC will work with national sporting organisations to develop and enhance quality coaching and officiating systems that adapt to the needs of participants, and provide a quality experience ranging from the local club to the high performance level. ASC will also assist sporting organisations to identify, attract and develop emerging coaches and officials, as well as retaining key national and senior coaches within the Australian sporting system and increase opportunities for mentoring.

ASC will work with other Australian Government agencies and system partners to support the development of sport in countries closely aligned to Australia’s international aid objectives. In 2010-11, ASC will continue to provide funding and specialist support for international community sport development programs. This will help build the capacity of individuals and organisations to deliver programs, use quality and inclusive sport and physical activities and contribute to improved leadership, health promotion and social cohesion.

Program 2.1: National elite athlete development

Program Objective

The Australian Government, through this Program, aims to:

- lead the development and implementation of strategies for an effective high performance system, providing enhanced support across whole of sport pathway for athletes and sporting organisations;
- provide a world class daily training environment through the AIS to support athletes to deliver excellence in sporting performances; and
- provide support to national sporting organisations, state and territory institutes and academies of sport, other sport system partners and athletes to enable them to achieve excellence in sporting performance.

Major Activities

An effective high performance system

In 2010-11, ASC will work with system partners to implement a more aligned and cooperative high performance system that has increased collaboration and clear roles and responsibilities, as agreed by SRMC under the new national operational model for institutes and academies of sport.

ASC will also boost support for the development pathway, the critical link between community sport and high performance programs.

In 2010-11, the Australian Government through ASC will provide additional investment to strengthen the development pathway, including boosting domestic competition and talent identification.

The ASC will continue working with national sporting organisations, state and territory institutes and academies of sport, and other system partners to support the development, implementation and monitoring of high performance plans.

In 2010-11, the ASC will review and monitor the delivery of high performance plans through the 'Pathway to Podium' framework. This process involves ASC working with national sporting organisations, the AIS, and the SIS/SAS where applicable, to monitor progress of the sport against key indicators, identify and resolve issues, and share information and best practice in relation to the effective operation of high performance programs. This, in turn, supports national sporting organisations and other agencies to deliver the best quality programs and services to support their elite athletes.

The Australian Institute of Sport – a centre of excellence

In 2010-11, the AIS will work with the SIS/SAS to provide a world class daily training environment that includes access to coaching, facilities, sport science and medicine, program management and competition opportunities to deliver excellence in sporting performances.

A key focus for ASC in 2010-11 will be to deliver a more aligned high performance strategy under the SRMC agreed national operational model for institutes and academies of sport.

ASC will in partnership with system partners also develop sport-specific plans for the delivery of the AIS scholarship programs.

ASC will improve high performance sport in Australia by sharing AIS experiences and expertise with system partners, such as national sporting organisations, SIS/SAS and other peak sporting organisations.

This will contribute to innovative and creative solutions in areas, such as the use of sport science to enhance training and coaching methodologies and practice, and the introduction of web-based tools to improve the planning, monitoring and review of sport programs for the benefit of high performance sport. In addition, the AIS will also work with the SIS/SAS to provide, nationally consistent support state institute and academy athletes regardless of geographic location.

Support sporting organisations and athletes

In 2010-11, ASC will continue to maintain effective partnerships and provide funding support to national sporting organisations to operate high performance programs, which deliver excellence in sporting performances.

Quality coaches are an essential requirement for Australia's continued success in international sport. ASC will work with national sporting organisations to support the retention of our top coaches, and to develop and support coaches at all stages along the sport development pathway.

In addition, ASC will continue to work with national sporting organisations and other system partners to deliver the National Talent Identification and Development program. In 2010-11, the Australian Government through ASC will provide a significant boost to the National Talent Identification and Development program. This increased program, will aid the expansion of the national high performance sporting base by identifying and developing future elite athletes and coaches, and facilitating the transition of talented athletes and coaches from ‘grass-roots’ to high performance programs.

ASC will provide increased support to national sporting organisations to create additional domestic competition opportunities to increase the standard of our national competitions, and further support to enable elite athletes to be exposed to international competition and compete on the world stage.

Athlete support is critical to retaining Australia’s talented athletes within the sports system and in recognition of this, the Australian Government through ASC will provide increased funding to targeted athletes through a Direct Athlete Support scheme to assist them in their preparation for major international events. This scheme will embrace an increased number of elite athletes and emerging athletes. In addition, ASC will also expand the Local Sporting Champions initiative, which provides financial assistance for junior sportsmen and women, young coaches, umpires and referees to compete and participate at state and national sporting events.

Sports science and medicine support is vital to Australia’s continued sporting success. In 2010-11, ASC will continue to conduct applied research to meet international challenges and strive for a competitive edge in sport. This will be a component of the national research agenda. It will involve establishing relationships between high performance sports, scientific and research agencies and the university sector, and applying research outcomes to support high performance sport.

3.2 Budgeted Financial Statements

3.2.1 Differences in agency resourcing and financial statements

Section 3.2.1 is not applicable to ASC.

3.2.2 Analysis of budgeted financial statements

An analysis of ASC's budgeted financial statements for 2010-11 is provided below.

Departmental Resources

Comprehensive Income Statement

ASC is budgeting for a break even operating result for 2010-11 and the three forward years.

Revenue from Government will increase in 2010-11 by $25 million which reflects additional funding provided through the 'Australian Sports Commission - long term sustainability of Australian sport' measure and the net effect of prior year decisions.

Balance Sheet

ASC's balance sheet shows a stable asset base from 2010-11 consisting mainly of non-financial assets. Receivables is expected to decrease by $1 million in 2010-11 as a result of a partial repayment of principal of a loan provided to the Football Federation of Australia with Loans (liabilities) also decreasing by $1 million with the subsequent partial repayment of the loan from the Department of Finance and Deregulation.

Liabilities are otherwise also expected to remain stable and cover current and future supplier and employee entitlements for 2010-11 and the forward years.
