

Looking for work in home care?

Are you looking for meaningful and flexible work in the aged care sector?

If you like building relationships and making a difference to the lives of others, becoming a personal care worker may be for you.

The Home Care Workforce Support Program supports people to become personal care workers.

- You will be supported to access and complete the training needed to succeed in the role.
- You will also be provided with work placement opportunities to develop your skills and experience in home care and residential care settings.

Additional support you can access through the program includes:

- Mentor networks and peer support
- Online information and collaboration
- Work placement and job vacancy registers
- Pre-employment, job-readiness training and induction

If this sounds like a career you'd be interested in, please visit:

 health.gov.au/our-work/home-care-workforce-support-program to find a provider close to where you live.

