Medicare Mental Health Check In

A new free digital mental health service has launched.

If you're feeling down, overwhelmed, or want to take better care of your wellbeing, Medicare Mental Health Check In offers free support to guide you through life's challenges.

The service is designed to help you build skills to support your mental health, social and emotional wellbeing.

It's completely free for anyone in Australia, with no referral or diagnosis needed.

Getting support early through low-intensity mental health services can help improve your mental wellbeing.

A range of simple online resources are available. You can also access online tools with the support of qualified mental health practitioners via telehealth.

You'll grow the confidence and skills to feel more prepared for life's ups and downs.

Who's it for

The service is for people who are:

- aged 16 years or older living in Australia
- feeling down, stressed or overwhelmed
- seeking low-intensity mental health and wellbeing support.

Why it's being created

Medicare Mental Health Check In will help people early – before problems get worse and they need more intense care later on.

Medicare Mental Health Check In also makes mental health support easier to access because it's online and free.

Experts and research have recommended services like Medicare Mental Health Check In to improve mental health care across Australia.

Who provides the support

Low-intensity Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (LiCBT) is provided by qualified mental health practitioners who have worked in mental health care or have experience in helping people overcome mental health challenges.

Every practitioner is fully trained and qualified to deliver LiCBT.

Medicare Mental Health Check In will also provide the flexibility for people to access self-guided tools, anytime, anywhere across Australia.

How you can access Medicare Mental Health Check In

You can now access free telehealth appointments with qualified mental health practitioners to work through the online LiCBT tools. Appointments are available from Monday to Friday (8am to 8pm), and weekends and public holidays (10am to 4pm).

From 30 May 2026, self-guided tools will be available for you to use at your own pace.

To access the service, call Medicare Mental Health on 1800 595 212 (between 8:30am and 5pm weekdays, except public holidays) to check whether Medicare Mental Health Check In is right for you. If the service isn't right for you, they'll be able to support you to other services and supports.
